

DOWNRIGHT INHUMANITY

Japanese Journal So Characterizes Russian Attack Upon the British Trawlers.

ONE OF MANY SUCH CRIMES

Act Only Possible With One Not Holding Anything in Common With Civilized People, It Says.

Tokio, Oct. 26, 8 p. m.—The Nichi Nichi, in commenting on the sinking of the trawler Crane in the North sea by the Russian second Pacific squadron, says that the action is beyond the capacity of comprehension of the ordinary mind.

"The vessels attacked," the paper continues, "were harmless fishing boats, belonging to a neutral power, and to indulge in such a flagrant violation of international usage is only possible with one holding nothing in common with civilized people."

"The act is too flagrant to be explained as a mistake, and doubtless the government of the injured people will take due action against Russia."

The Nichi Nichi then goes on to recite other illegal acts of Russia against neutrals. It pronounced this the crowning act of an already well known inhumanity and declares that the Russians "completely lack a sense of humanity, an attribute of enlightened minds."

OYSTER HATCHING IN PUBLIC.

New Jersey's Interesting Exhibit At The World's Fair.

St. Louis, Oct. 26.—World's fair visitors can witness the novel sight of oyster hatching and oyster culture in all of its stages in New Jersey's interesting exhibit in the Forestry, Fish and Game building. The life of the oyster from the spat to the full-grown bi-valve is shown in this exhibit where the habits of the oyster and the methods of handling it may be studied.

In a large glass tank, filled with sea water, sea moss and mud from the oyster-fields of the New Jersey coast, the oysters may be seen. Here is the spat of the oyster before hatching and here may be seen the development of the oyster from the spat or egg state to the ostreidae or young oysters.

Within two hours after the spat of the oyster is deposited, it begins to undergo a transformation by hardening and the changes which follow are numerous until the young oysters become living shell-fish two weeks later. These tiny oysters cling to everything that is stationary, nature impelling them to do this in order to escape being swept away by the tides. Some specimens are shown in the cabinets at the World's fair, clinging to an old pipe that had been dropped into the bay, others are seen clinging to a doll, others to a baby's shoe and others to a set of false teeth that some one had lost. As a barnacle the young oyster clings to anything that comes its way. It does not move but attaches itself to various objects.

The oyster is good to eat at three years of age and is prime at four years and over. The New Jersey exhibit shows all of the phases of the oyster industry. The spat, the young and old oysters, the tongs for catching oysters in shallow water, the iron dredge with chain attachment for dragging the bottom of the bay for oysters, pictures of the spat or eggs magnified many times.

The clam industry is also a feature of the New Jersey exhibit, the various stages of the clam being shown, from the egg to the soft shell or little neck clam, which is the young clam, to the hard shell or old clam. Lobsters and crabs are also shown in their several stages.

In a large tank, forty feet in diameter, and ten feet deep, is an assortment of sea fish: sharks, pike and other denizens of the deep. This tank contains sixty feet of sea water and the fish may be seen swimming about at all times.

The New Jersey fishing exhibit is in charge of Benjamin S. Lore, an expert in oyster culture, who takes pleasure in explaining the oyster and fishing exhibit to World's fair visitors.

KEEP YOUR HEAD UNCOVERED.

The Constant Wearing of a Hat Propagates Dandruff Germs.

There are many men who wear their hats practically all the time when awake, and are blessed with a heavy shock of hair; yet if the scalps of these same men once became infested with dandruff germs, the parasites would multiply all the quicker for lack of air. Baldness would ensue as the final result. Newbro's Herpicide kills these germs and stimulates unhealthy hair to abundant growth. Herpicide is a pleasant hair dressing as well as a dandruff cure and contains not an atom of injurious substance. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

lege of enforcing obedience by the use of the rod, ferrule or other means of corporal punishment. A proposed amendment to the present law has been exhaustively discussed by the committee of elementary education and when it was put to a vote was defeated. Moral suasion, it was decided, is the only up to date method worthy of consideration. Superintendent Maxwell took a firm stand on that ground and a majority of the committee stood with him. Three committeemen favored giving a restricted right to administer some form of corporal punishment.

After a long discussion it was decided that the committee should report to the board of education today in favor of retaining the present rule forbidding the use of corporal punishment in the public schools.

Members of the committee believe that their report will be accepted by the board and that there will be no further agitation on the subject.

MUDDLE AT VALPARAISO.

Signing Of Treaty Of Peace With Bolivia Did Not End Troubles.

New York, Oct. 26.—The cabinet crisis seems to have no end, says a dispatch from the Herald's correspondent at Valparaiso, Chile. Political leaders, in their efforts to solve the situation, are resorting to all sorts of intrigue. Indignation over the affair is being freely expressed by leading citizens.

President Riesco and the president of Bolivia have exchanged cordial messages of congratulations following the signing of the peace treaty.
